EDITORIAL

To mutilate an old saying, editors come, and editors go, but "Awareness" must go on for ever. We have lost the valuable services of Mr. J.B. Delair, and into the breach steps an editorial sub-committee. (Surely Mr. Delair will be able to derive immense satisfaction from the knowledge that it now takes three people to do the job which he managed to do so admirably, for so long, single handed!) Nevertheless, in some trepidation, intermingled with a modicum of anxiety and exhaustion, the editorial sub-committee present their first offering for the approbation (or otherwise) of you, our Members. We have not made, neither do we intend to make, drastic changes; our sole endeavour will be to maintain the high standard set by the previous editor - if we can. Should we fail, it will not be through lack of goodwill or effort.

* * * * *

One of the questions which we are frequently asked is "Do you believe that there really are such things as Flying Saucers?", and we usually reply "Well, it all depends (as Professor Joad would say, were he still with us) on what you mean by 'Flying Saucers'". We prefer to use the more modern name Unidentified Flying Objects, which are simply and solely, as the name implies, Objects seen, usually in the air - i.e. flying - which cannot be identified as commonly seen aerial objects, for example aircraft, clouds, birds, balloons etc. And, yes, we really do believe that there are such things. Why? Mainly because of the abundance of evidence from impeccable sources. Just take a look at the occupations of some of the originators of reliable reports: policemen, coastguards, pilots of civil and military aircraft, naval and mercantile marine officers, astronauts. These are people who are trained to both observe, and interpret or identify what they observe. And all have reported objects which they have been unable to identify. And what about the lawyers, scientists, astronomers, ministers of religion, and civic dignitaries? Are these the sort of people who would commit professional or social suicide by telling lies, or perpetrating hoaxes? The answer to this question must be an emphatic 'No'. Their reports just have to be believed. And we believe - that in legal phraseology, a case has been established for the existence of Unidentified Flying Objects

On the wider issues of What are they; where do they come from; what do they want with us, much controversy exists, and it is not within the scope of this editorial to enter such a controversial field. What we will say, however, is that the time is ripe for a full-scale, unbiassed and thorough investigation at the highest government level into the whole complex problem, with the accent on unbiassed. Only then will the grave doubts now prevalent in the minds of many on the subject of Government knowledge of the subject, be allayed.

* * * * *

The editorial sub-committee regret that for economic and other reasons, it is not always possible to acknowledge every item of correspondence received by CONTACT (UK). Nevertheless, in order to stimulate discussion and Member participation, any letters addressed to the editorial board and marked 'For Publication' would be considered for publication in future issues of "Awareness" in a 'Letters to the Editor' section. Letters should be addressed to the editorial sub-committee, c/o The National Chairman (address on p.1).

"THE LATE GEORGE ADAMSKI ON THE ANTONIO APODACA AFFAIR"

by

Lucius Farish and Ted Bloecher.

(Editorial note: when, on the occasion of his visit to London last November, Ted Bloecher met Bernard Delair, and was told by him of the existence of the Antonio Apodaca report in Contact (UK)'s archives, he immediately recalled that a mutual American colleague, Lucius Farish, possessed a tape recording of a talk delivered by the late George Adamski in Kansas City on November 30th., 1958, and in which details of the Apodaca case occurred. Upon his return to America, Mr Bloecher obtained a transcript of the tape from Mr Farish, which was then sent on to Bernard Delair for inclusion in "Awareness" together with Ian Norrie's report from Mexico on the same case. Although the latter was published in the Spring 1977 issue of "Awareness", the transcript of the Adamski tape arrived too late for use in that issue, and is therefore published below. In view of their co-operation in making this material available to Contact (UK), we are delighted to present it under their joint names.

All readers who have followed the Apodaca affair to date will, on reading the following, quickly appreciate that some of Adamski's statements are inaccurate — for example, he gives the date as 1952, whereas we know that it was 1953 — and possibly embroidered. It is known, however, that Adamski visited Mexico and talked with several individuals who had been directly involved in investigating Apodaca's claims, so, equally possibly, he drew upon various items gleaned from such sources but omitted from Apodaca's own story, itself admittedly incomplete. At this stage it seems best to present Adamski's version of the case exactly as transcribed from the tape-recording, and to reserve commentary and discussion until the results of new investigations being undertaken in Mexico become known. The following text, therefore, incorporates Adamski's characteristic style of talking, and, so far as is known, is a faithful record of what he actually said in Kansas City on November 30th., 1958. )

"...On this case. When I went to Mexico, some year and a half ago, I went to Mexico City, although we stayed at Chipaula (spelling ?), and the reporter — same reporter that had me interview the Mexican chauffeur, who had the contact that most of you read about — and I had that chauffeur finally to lecture for the Mexican government officials, for whom I also have lectured — so this reporter comes up and brings me a script. He reads it to me — tells me all about it. "What do you think about it, George?" "It sounds good — go ahead". So he read it all the way through. What he was doing — he already had the story — he wanted to confirm it by my opinion. Was the story straight or wasn't it? But later I found out that was known — the story was already confirmed by the Mexican government, by the major officials of that government. Of this particular case — this case took place in the year of '52, the same date, or same year, I mean, that I had the contact out in the desert. This fella had the contact same. Out there, about 60 miles from Guadalajara. His father owned a million acres of land — very wealthy people. He was educated as a high engineer. He was still taking engineering lessons then, and also a professor, or a teacher, at the University. Only boy in the family, and his father died. So he had to take over that big ranch, on which there were many people living and working. He took over this ranch because his mother alone could not handle it.

So, after he had been there for quite some time, one bright morning — not night, in the morning — a big spacecraft appeared on the land, quite a ways from them. All the workmen and himself, they observed the spacecraft as it landed; and at first he prepared himself, and he carried two guns, one on each hip, his belt full of ammunition. And so, what happened? He had a feeling to grab for the guns, but then something stopped him, so he left the guns alone. These men coming up out of the ship towards him -- towards his other people -- knew already what his thoughts were at the time that he had a thought to pull the guns. And they raised their hands in this manner. They walked up to him that way. They talked to him, and to his people, that way, before he realized that they had their hands still up, and he commanded 'em, he says, you can put 'em down. The mind of humans on this earth is very unsettled and cannot be trusted at any time -- and the men knew that; so, until he was really satisfied in his own mind, and commanded them to put their hands down, they was gonna keep 'em up. Anyway -- so he takes 'em into the house. First he thought it was some kind of new American ship (aircraft, Ed.), but then later he learns who they were. It was a Venusian ship. Two men. He learns about it. So, he takes them in the house. First thing, they want to give 'em Tequila -- these men to have tequila. Well, they wouldn't drink tequila. So they give 'em food -- fed 'em. They stayed there for two days, and as they stayed around for a few days finally, when the time was coming to an end, they had to go. They asked him "Would you want to go from where we come from?", and he says "No, because its too far. I can't leave the place for that length of time". And they told him, "It's not any further than it would be if you boarded a plane and go to your neighbouring nation" -- which was us. So then he decided he would go. So he went. He did not take off his guns, nor did he take off his belt full of ammunition; he went as he was. He walked around the planet Venus just as he was. He went to their restaurants; he ate in their restaurants -- they have restaurants, except you don't pay for anything. Got there -- the first thing the space people did, they took him in and that is, to go up there, pick up trays that have already been filled -- brought it to the table, they sit down and ate. Then they brought him another tray. They started on a third one when he couldn't eat no more, but he says he don't want no more. But each time they would ask him how he liked it. Well, he enjoyed it very much.

Then they him, and they said: "Well, would you want to go and see some people that talk Spanish here?" "Yes". So they took him in a ship out of the city a little ways, and he thought they're maybe Spanish people -- well, they could talk Spanish, but they were not Spanish. They were French, there only about 6 months (Apodaca's original narrative says that they had been there about 5 years, Ed.). But they talked good Spanish -- but he talked with them.

Well, anyhow, he went various places and ... quite a lot just what we have seen; but it goes to prove one thing: that this man's guns did not melt, as it's been brought but by others in writings, that you must not have any metal on your person -- I always had this ring, I always had my watch, and always had change in my pocket, which is silver or copper -- and nothing has ever been melted on me either. And I've been in a number of 'em -- so, he come back -- he come back, and he said the people... What was funny, mostly, people in the square would be moving just like they do in the cities here, passing each other by and all o'that, and smiling to one another, but never talking. It was kind o'funny to him. Then he was tald they didn't have to talk -- they recognized themselves without words, through the mental contact, or the mental telepathy, as we call it. They greeted everybody that way. They didn't have to waste time in talkin'. The only time they use their sound, when they want to sing or make noise. That's the only time. So that was kind of funny to him, at the time, he says, but he learned better.

But -- he didn't want to go at first, but when they wanted to bring him back, then he didn't want to come back either. But they brought him back anyway. And when they brought him back -- all around here, he wasn't out in the country anywhere, very far, so he didn't see all the things they might have, like chickens, ducks, and so on and so forth -- they're not the same kind of chickens as ours, but still they're chickens. Or a duck, and so forth. So, what happened then, he said, "Well, I didn't see this and I didn't see that. You people have been so good to me". So they loaded up the ship -- actually loaded the ship up -- with provisions that was (sic, Ed.) right off his own ranch, when the ship brought him back and was ready to go back -- crated things up and loaded. And that's what cinched the story

The government investigated all of that -- all the people that was working there, and all the people that had the doing of the packing and loading that ship -- with provisions from Earth to Venus. That's what cinched that story. And then it was published -- and the government released it, and it was published. His name was not published, because he begged not to. He's wealthy enough, and he didn't go out for the money, and so forth; but even in spite of all that, somebody found out who he was, and he had to move out -- we don't know where he is. But he says he wants to see me when I get back to Mexico, one of these days, and so the paper's gonna publicize my coming, and they think he'll come out of the hideout to talk with me. 'Cause he don't want to see no people -- he got so sick and tired of everybody, after that story came out, see. And the kind of people that everybody wanted a souvenir, even of his own clothes. Now, just imagine -- they wanted a souvenir of him because he was on the planet, and he had the guns up there and one thing and another, so they wanted a piece of those clothes -- that cloth -- and so forth. Why, just imagine what would happen to a spaceman if he'd come among people like that or anywhere -- they'd tear him to pieces only to have a piece of Venusian meat, or something. That's the situation, you see. Might as well face it.

And so -- these people are very real. Just as real as you and I. Sure, they have no pain, because they have outgrown that..."

(end of excerpt)

Those who have followed the previous issues of "Awareness" detailing the Apodaca affair will quickly note that, while Adamski (who presumably spoke from memory at the Kansas City lecture) was wrong in some of his statements, and seems for no good reason to have assumed that Apodaca's experiences were connected with Venusians and the planet Venus, he nevertheless provides some interesting information respecting the alleged Mexican governmental investigation of the case. If the Mexican authorities did investigate the affair and interview the many farm-hands apparently involved, then their archives should presumably still contain documents relating to the case, while it is not unreasonable to suppose that at least of the farm-hands are still alive and available for re-interviewing. It is to be hoped that properly conducted investigations designed expressly to elicit information about this case from all such individuals as can still be traced will be put into operation at the earliest possible moment, and the final results published in due course.

Adamski's reference to Apodaca retreating from publicity is most interesting -- especially as it seems to have been the reverse of his own personal tendencies -- and indicates that Apodaca was, as Adamski pointed out, not interested in financial gain through exploitation of his claims. This, while not in any way proving the reality of Apodaca's experiences, is nevertheless a point in its favour, and, to a degree, supports the conclusion reached by Bernard Delair in his separate appraisal of the various ingredients comprising Apodaca's narrative ("Awareness", Spring 1977), the conclusion being that a definite substratum of fact underlies the case as a whole. If demonstrably so, then the Apodaca affair could well turn out to be the most important document in the entire field of ufology. Time will tell.

CLUES FROM THE ANCIENT PAST?

George Andrews*

References to phenomena indicative of UFO activity are scattered through the material from many different historical periods and cultural traditions collected in "Drugs and Magic", edited by George Andrews (Panther, £1.50). Two of the most significant references, taken from texts of impeccable authenticity, are to be found in the chapters entitled "Ancient India" and "Ancient China", and are summarised as follows.

The material from ancient India is from the "Atharva Veda", translated by William Dwight Whitney, published by Harvard University in 1905. The material from ancient China is from "Ch'u Tz'u", the Songs of the South, translated by David Hawkes, Oxford University Press, 1959. The "Ch'u Tz'u" are among the earliest known Chinese poems, and have been dated between the fifth and first centuries B.C. It is rather unlikely that either of the translators would have been aware of the ufological implications of the material on which they were working.

Ancient India

Sweet verily is this soma, and full of honey is this; strong verily is this; and no one soever overpowers in conflicts Indra, having now drunk of it.

O Indra and soma, cause to roll from the sky the deadly weapon, from the earth also, a shattering for the evil-plotter; shape out from the mountains the noisy one, wherewith you burn down the increasing demon.

O Indra and soma, cause it to roll forth from the sky; with fire-heated stone-smiting unaging heat-weapons do you pierce the devourers in the abyss; let them go to silence...

Cause the stone to roll forth from the sky, O Indra; it, sharpened by soma, do thou wholly sharpen, O liberal one; from before, from away, from below, from above do thou smite upon the demoniacs with a mountain.

Here fly these dog-sorcerers; Indra the unharmable they the harm-seeking seek to harm; the mighty one sharpens his deadly weapon for the treacherous ones; now may he let fly the thunderbolt at the sorcerers.

Look thou on, look abroad; O soma, Indra also, watch ye; hurl ye the deadly weapon at the demons, the thunderbolt at the sorcerers.

He who hath worshipped thee, O fury, missile thunderbolt, gains power, force, everything in succession; may we, with thee as ally, that art made of power, overpower the barbarian, the Aryan, with powerful power.

Fury was Indra, fury indeed was a god; fury was priest, Varuna, Jatavedas; the clans which are descended from Manu praise fury; protect us, O fury, in accord with fervour.

* George Andrews is a Member of Contact (UK), and lives at "Fishponds", Butleigh, Glastonbury, Somerset

Here I am for thee; come hitherwards unto us, meeting us, O powerful all-giving one; O thunderbolt-bearing fury, turn hither to us; let us two slay the barbarians; and do thou know thy partner.

Go thou forth among them; be on our right hand; then will we two smite and slay many Vrtas; I offer to thee the sustaining top of the sweet; let us both drink the initial draught.

The mighty one chose a drink of soma; a great stone became what was his body.

Your mastery I know, your kingdom O Trishandi... what in the atmosphere, what in the sky, and what men are on the earth....

Iron-mouthed, needle-mouthed, likewise thorn-tree-mouthed, let the flesh-eaters, of wind swiftness, fasten on our enemies with the three-jointed thunderbolt.

O Jatavedas, Aditya, put thou between much human flesh; let this army of Trishandi be well placed in my control.

Stand thou up, O god-folk, O Arbudi, with the army; this tribute is offered to you; the offering is dear to Trishandi...

Brihaspati of the Angiras race, the seers sharpened by the Brahman, set up in the sky the Asura-destroying weapon, Trishandi...

All worlds did the gods completely conquer by means of that offering - the thunderbolt which Brihaspati of the Angiras race poured, an Asura-destroying weapon.

O Indra and Varuna, soma-drinkers, this pressed soma, intoxicating, drink ye. O ye of firm courses; let your chariot, the sacrifice for the god-feast, approach towards the stall to drink.

The great superintendent of them sees, as it were, from close by; whoever thinks to be going on in secret, all this the gods know.

Whoso stands, goes about, and whoso goes crookedly, whoso goes about hiddenly, who defiantly - what two, sitting together, talk, King Varuna, as third, knows that.

Both this earth is King Varuna's, and yonder great sky with distant margins; also the two oceans are Varuna's paunches; also in this petty water he is hidden.

Also whoso should creep off far beyond the sky, he should not be released from King Varuna; from the sky his spies go forth; thousand-eyed, they look over the earth.

All this King Varuna beholds - what is between the two firmaments, what beyond; numbered of him are the winkings of people; as a gambler the disc, so does he fix these things.

Since thou verily, O self-ruling Varuna, knowest all births, O well-conducting one - is there anything beyond the welkin? is there anything below what is beyond, O unerring one?

There is one other thing beyond the welkin; there is something hard to attain hitherward from what is beyond; this, I, Varuna, knowing it, proclaim to thee.

The one this side, the other beyond the back of the sky, in secret are deposited the two treasures of the Brahman,

The two wheels of thee, O Surya, the priests know... further, the one wheel that is in secret - that, verily, the enlightened know.

On the back of yonder sky the all-knowing ones talk a speech not found by all... The five-footed father of twelve shapes they call rich in ground in the far half of the sky...

Eight-wheeled, nine-doored is the impregnable stronghold of the gods; in that is found a golden vessel, heaven-going, covered with light.

In that golden vessel, three-spoked, having three supports - what soul-possessing monster there is in it, that verily the knowers of the Brahmam know.

The Brahman entered into the resplendent yellow golden unconquered stronghold that was all covered with glory.

By this shape generating exploits, he, verily, fiery, a wide way for space; he went up to meet the sustaining top of the sweet; with his own self he sent forth a self.

Ascend ye to the highest heaven; O seers, be not afraid; ye soma-drinkers, soma-drenchers, this oblation is made to you; we have gone to the highest light.

Ancient China.

On a lucky day with an auspicious name
Reverently we come to delight the Lord on High.
We grasp the long sword's haft of jade,
And our girdle pendants clash and chime.
Jade weights fasten the god's jewelled mat.
Now take up the rich and fragrant flower-offerings,
The meats cooked in melilotus, served on orchid mats
And libations of cinnamon wine and pepper sauces!
Flourish the drumsticks and beat all the drums!
The singing begins softly to a slow solemn measure;
Then, as pipes and zithers join in, the singing grows shriller.
Now the priestesses come, splendid in their gorgeous apparel,
And all the hall is filled with a penetrating fragrance.
The five sounds mingle in rich harmony;
And the god is merry and takes his pleasure.

We have bathed in orchid water and washed our hair with perfumes,
And dressed ourselves like flowers in embroidered clothing.
The god has halted, swaying above us,
Shining with a persistent radiance.
He is going to rest in the House of Life.
His brightness is like that of the sun and moon.
He yokes to his dragon car the steeds of god;
Now he flies off to wander round the sky.
The god has just descended in bright majesty,
When off in a whirl he soared again, far into the clouds
He looks down on Chi-chou and the lands beyond it;
There is no place in the world that he does not pass over.

Open wide the door of heaven!
On a black cloud I ride in splendour

Bidding the whirlwind drive before me,
 Causing the rainstorms to lay the dust.
 In sweeping circles my lord is descending.
 'Let me follow you over the K'ung-sang mountains
 See the teeming people of the Nine Lands!'
 'What is the span of man's life to me?'
 Flying aloft, he soars serenely,
 Riding the pure vapour, guiding yin and yang.
 Speedily, Lord, I will go with you,
 Conducting High God on his way to Chiu Kang.
 My cloud-coat hangs in billowing folds;
 My jade girdle-pendants dangle low:
 A yin and a yang, a yin and a yang.
 None of the common folk know what I am doing.
 I have plucked the glistening flower of the Holy Hemp
 To give to one who lives Far away.
 Old age already has crept upon me;
 I am no longer near him, fast growing a stranger.
 He drives his dragon chariot with thunder of wheels;
 High up he rides, careering heavenwards,
 But I stand where I am, twisting a sprig of cassia:
 The longing for him pains my heart.

OUR STARTLING "SPACESHIP" MOON

by

Don Wilson*

The Apollo moon trips are over. To many who had hoped for fantastic discoveries on the Moon which would reveal past or even present presence of extraterrestrials, it turned out to be one huge disappointment. To the scientists who thought that the Moon might turn out to be the Rosetta Stone that would unravel the secrets of the universe, our pockmarked satellite turned out to be one big puzzle. In fact, a NASA document on the Apollo findings concluded by describing the Moon as the "biggest puzzler of them all." No scientific theory yet can account for the strange make-up of the Moon or even adequately explain how it got in our corner of the cosmos, circling our planet Earth.

THE MOON-SOURCE OF UFOS?

Many UFO devotees and even conservative UFO experts had felt that tantalising evidence collected over the many decades had indicated that UFOs were moon-based. Strange moving lights and objects sighted there over the centuries and recorded in scientific journals, strange unexplained structures that would appear and disappear off the face of the Moon all indicated UFOs might be using the Moon as a base for their operations. CANADIAN UFO magazine, one of the more forthright and fascinating of UFO journals summed it up well:

"Of all the bases our visitors might have from which to conduct their exploration of Earth, none holds more logical or intriguing possibilities than the Moon".

* 11737, Harter Court, Plymouth, Michigan 48170, United States of America.

They pointed out that the evidence clearly pointed the finger at the strange even mysterious satellite that circles our Earth. The Moon appeared to be the perfect answer to that ticklish problem: WHERE DO ALL THE UFOS COME FROM?

With as many as a half-dozen solid UFO sightings coming into the CENTER FOR UFO STUDIES from all over the world, Dr. J. Allen Hynek, expert astronomer from Northwestern University and former U.S. Air Force investigator of UFO phenomenon, points out the dilemma with his key phrase that sums it all up: "THERE'S AN EMBARRASSMENT OF RICHES."

There are just too many UFOs reported around the world every day to believe that they are all coming from far-flung star systems and planets. Yet clearly the data and the evidence indicates that UFOs - at least the vast majority - are extraterrestrial in origin. How to resolve this problem?

EARLY UFO PIONEER POINTED TO THE MOON

Over two decades ago, another leading astronomer and astrophysicist, Dr. Morris Jessup of the University of Michigan, who unlike many of his scientific colleagues open-mindedly attacked the UFO problem, came to be convinced that they not only existed, but that they were emanating from outer space and the Moon.

Jessup was keenly aware of the thousands of unexplainable reports of moving lights and objects sighted on the Moon which had been reported almost continuously in science journals and observatory reports over several centuries. Dr. Jessup made a special study of these, and came to the conclusion that they were definitely UFOs - not mere lights of volcanoes erupting, or even caused by some kind of thermo-luminescence. They were clearly in his scientific mind spacecraft, from their intriguing characteristics.

In Jessup's mind-boggling book THE CASE FOR THE UFO and even more pointedly in his sequel, THE EXPANDING CASE FOR THE UFO, this renowned scientist, discoverer of myriads of new stars and star systems, concluded that our Moon was indeed the centre and base of operations for UFOs visiting the planet Earth.

It is interesting that the U.S. government which has never publicly admitted that a single verified UFO exists, but which has frantically studied and collected information on them for several decades, has seen fit to make a secret study of the strange moving lights and transient phenomena that have been reported by scientists over the past several centuries, on the Moon. It is further intriguing that the U.S. government's space agency (NASA) has never admitted that our astronauts DID SEE UFOS ON NEARLY EVERY MOON TRIP, even though mission control-astronaut conversations describe what appear to be unidentified flying objects on innumerable occasions. Altogether 26 space missions have reported sighting "bogeys" or UFOs in outer space, and even the infamous CONDON REPORT which many UFO experts are convinced tried to whitewash all UFOs out of earth's skies, and has never been considered gullible in accepting any UFO evidence, did actually declare several UFO sightings by astronauts as UNEXPLAINABLE!

Overall, there is clear evidence that our space agency censored out astronaut sightings through the use of private channels, so that the average person watching on television, or listening on the radio, never heard these shocking descriptions of "bogeys" that were reported by our astronauts from space through the world wide space communications hook-up.

But a review of the tapes of these recorded ASTRONAUT/MISSION CONTROL conversations prove that strange moving lights seen by our astronauts in space and around the moon were nothing but UFOs. Dr. Farouk El Baz, former NASA scientist who trained the astronauts, admits as much. And he declares that the strange lights seen by them are unquestionably UFOs.

Dr. James Harder of the University of California, who did review the tapes and himself heard startling descriptions of UFOs sighted by our astronauts, confronted NASA officials with his shocking discovery. He got a private admission from them that indeed our Apollo moon-bound astronauts did definitely see UFOs IN OUTER SPACE BUT THAT THESE WERE COVERED UP FOR FEAR OF PUBLIC PANIC.

In our book OUR MYSTERIOUS SPACESHIP MOON (Dell/Sphere Paperbacks) we present transcripts of these sightings which NASA has been hiding from the people of the world, along with evidence of the big NASA cover-up, a cover-up that is cosmic in proportion to the recent Watergate mess - and whose implications are far-reaching.

EVIDENCE OF A HOLLOW MOON!

But far more shocking discoveries were made on our space probes than the startling unexplainable sightings of UFOs. Out of the Soviet Union came the first indication that something was different about our satellite in the sky, when two scientists of the SOVIET ACADEMY OF SCIENCES in SPUTNIK magazine presented their arguments that our Moon may be a huge hollow planetoid with a 20-mile thick inner shell of metal underneath its hide of rock and dirt. In other words, evidence garnered by both Soviet and American lunar probes has led some scientists to become convinced that our Moon may in fact be a huge spaceship - a huge natural asteroid that was hollowed out and converted into a spaceship by unknown alien intelligences, which was "steered" into orbit around our earth aeons ago. Preposterous? Seemingly. Yet the discoveries found by American and Soviet lunar missions indeed indicate - disconcerting and unbelievable as it sounds - that this bizarre, crazy Soviet "spaceship" moon theory may be correct!

EVIDENCE FOR OUR HOLLOW MOON

What hard core evidence is there that this theory may be embedded in solid fact? First, several studies indicated even early in our study of the Moon that it might be hollow. Soviet density study, NASA motion study, and later gravitational field study all arrived at the same conclusion - OUR MOON APPEARS TO BE A HOLLOW SPHERE! Dr. Gordon McDonald's motion study made in the sixties and based on early unmanned probes, accumulated data that indicated the Moon was a hollow orb, with its weight on the outside. Conflicting data purportedly threw this conclusion into doubt, but later evidence makes one wonder. Another gravitational field study done by Dr. Sean Solomon of M.I.T. using NASA-obtained data, indicated "the frightening possibility that the Moon may be hollow". Frightening, as Solomon noted, because as astronomers agree, a satellite cannot be naturally hollow. If our Moon is hollow, it would necessarily have been artificially hollowed out. And that requires some kind of intelligence - obviously alien intelligence!

THE MOON RINGS LIKE A HUGE HOLLOW BELL

Perhaps the most startling proof that these theoretical studies were correct - more than any NASA scientist was willing to admit, came from the experiments that were performed on the Moon itself. By crashing huge sections of used spacecraft, scientists knew that they could get a picture of the lunar interior. Spent third stages of rockets were steered out of earth orbit and crashed into the Moon along with various ascent stages of lunar modules. When they hit the Moon, sensitive seismometers that had been placed there by our astronauts recorded that the strange lunar orb "rang like a huge bell or gong" - to use the very words of the NASA scientists themselves. Shockingly the reverberations resounded for hours - more than four hours in fact. The Moon reacted like a huge, hollow sphere!

Strikingly, even NASA scientists themselves have made various models of the Moon based on data and evidence accumulated, and have come up with one model of the Moon that is exactly what the Soviet researchers say it is: A HUGE ROCK-COVERED HOLLOW METAL SPHERE! This is nothing else but a spaceship!

There are many other places of mystery on the Moon that indicate the Moon is hollow and possesses such a layer of metal just underneath its dirt hide. In fact, evidence of two strange seismic belts inside the Moon has even led some scientists to speculate that "blocks of metal" more than a thousand kilometers long may exist inside the Moon. (See OUR MYSTERIOUS SPACESHIP MOON). How is this possible? It isn't, except that inside the hollowed-out interior, such artificial constructions like this might exist. Metal girder-like blocks are not found in nature.

In OUR MYSTERIOUS SPACESHIP MOON* we detail dozens of similar pieces of evidence that back the strange Soviet spaceship theory. In our soon-to-be published sequel THE STRANGE WORLD OF OUR SPACESHIP MOON we cite more than 100 major pieces of evidence that prove that our mysterious satellite that circles our Earth is in fact a huge hollow world with apparent artificial constructions on the inside, not the least of which is an inner shell of metal that enshrouds the interior of the Moon.

ASTRONAUTS FIND SHOCKING EVIDENCE ON THE EXTERIOR TOO!

Perhaps two of the more startling pieces of evidence come from the outside, specifically from those strange circular dark areas on the Moon known as the "maria". Ancient and mediaeval astronomers thought they were "seas", hence they have become known by the Latin word for seas, maria. Since our astronauts have landed on them, we now know they are in fact seas of lava. But not ordinary lava - lava that is loaded with metals. And not ordinary metal, but high refractory metals that are rare on earth. These are the kinds of metal that are extremely durable, and have extremely high melting points - titanium, beryllium, yttrium, molybdenum and the like. Although it remains a mystery, these rare metallic elements have in some way been melted and fused with lunar rock. Scientists know that the temperatures on the surface must have in some unknown fashion have reached 4500 degrees Centigrade! To get an idea of how hot this is, remember that at ground level in the Hiroshima atomic bomb blast, a temperature of 5000 degrees Centigrade was reached! We are not suggesting, obviously, that aliens used atomic bomb blasts or nuclear devices of some kind to hollow out their spaceship world, but that clearly the Moon got much hotter than any scientist ever calculated it could have. In fact, scientists like the Nobel prize-winning Dr. Harold Urey, claimed before the Moon journeys, that evidence would show that the Moon was a cold body, and always had been a cold body. For it was too small an orb to have generated sufficient levels of heat to cause any significant lava flows. And he claimed he could prove this mathematically.

But the evidence proved to the contrary - that the Moon somehow got much hotter than even our hot Earth. How, they are at a loss to say. How such refractory elements like titanium could have been melted and fused with rock, they cannot divine. They are unable to determine how natural volcanic action on the Moon could have generated sufficient heat and energies to cause liquid titanium to flow across vast circular areas of the Moon - some of them larger than Britain and France put together!

But could they not have been caused by impacting of huge meteors and even asteroids? No, not according to leading scientists like Dr. Zdenek Kopal of Manchester University in England, who is considered one of the world's leading lunar experts. All evidence indicates that they flowed from some kind of volcanic action from deep within the Moon's interior, to the surface. He points out, moreover, that scientists today are unable to explain what could have generated naturally these tremendous energies to cause vast outpourings on to the Moon's surface.

Finally, there is something else very strange about all this. Lunar samples indicate that it was the heavier stuff, like the metallically loaded material, that came to the surface. How is this possible, In natural lava flows on Earth, it is the lighter slag that comes to the surface. How could the heavier have been driven to the surface? This appears to go contrary to the laws of nature, but the evidence would appear to indicate that they were not NATURAL LAVA FLOWS, however, but artificially induced in some way, by alien intelligence.

And so the Moon bears on its surface, marks of the hollowing out process, with its guts spilled out in strange, non-randomly distributed circular areas. Areas that are filled with tough metals. No wonder that our poor astronauts using nuclear powered drills that supposedly could go through anything, were able to penetrate only with great difficulty a few inches of tough maria.

PURE IRON THAT DOES NOT RUST

Something else was discovered that really baffles lunar experts. Moon samples include pure metal particles, found in both Soviet and American returned material. Last Summer, PRAVDA, the official organ of the Soviet government, announced that samples brought back in 1971 contained pure iron particles, even as American scientists had found in American lunar samples. But the Soviet announcement went on to say that the iron found was no ordinary iron - IT WAS PURE IRON THAT DOES NOT RUST! It has been back since 1971 and has not oxidised one bit - and that is over six years. PURE IRON THAT DOES NOT RUST IS NOT FOUND IN NATURAL STATE. It would appear that it had been produced by some unknown technological process - and need we point out that since we cannot produce iron that does not oxidise here on Earth, it is a technology that is superior to any we have on Earth? But even more important, by implication we have discovered material produced by a technology alien to Earth. Material manufactured, we can only conclude, by alien beings!

These are just a few tantalising bits of evidence that indicate that the world circling our skies is not a completely natural orb. Evidence that indicates our Moon is hollow, with a metal shell underneath its surface crust. And moreover, convincing evidence that shows it may indeed be a huge hollowed-out planetoid that is nothing else but a spaceship!

It is time that scientists and scientific minds turned their attention to this greatest of all mysteries that faces mankind. And one that may hold the key to the mystery not only of UFOs, but of Man!

BOOK REVIEWOUR UFO VISITORS: A Canadian Report

By John Magor

Hancock House Publishers Ltd., 1977

pp.264.

Price HC$9.95

Few serious ufologists will be unaware of who John Magor is, or that he has for many years been directly associated with the prestigious journal "Canadian UFO Report". Any book from the pen of so eminent an authority must perforce be worth reading. Well, Mr. Magor has just published "OUR UFO VISITORS", and, predictably, it fully comes up to expectations. Indeed, so packed is it with fascinating details, many of them published for the very first time, that it deserves several readings.

Very wisely "OUR UFO VISITORS" concentrates on a comparatively limited geographical area - that encompassed by British Columbia, the Yukon, and Alberta - thereby explaining the book's sub-title. A quite astonishing number of UFO incidents have occurred in this region down the years, and these are expertly presented by Mr. Magor in lucid style. By focussing attention on this little highlighted region, Mr. Magor performs a very great service to ufology, for it must surely transpire, for this very reason, that "OUR UFO VISITORS" will remain indispensable to ufologists for years to come. It also reveals that awesomely large numbers of ufo incidents occur almost everywhere, and that we still know very little of the true number of events that occur globally.

Written with remarkable economy, Mr. Magor's text is logical, unambiguous, and very readable. Enlivened with many photographs (some hitherto little known outside Canada) and numerous first-rate line drawings, "OUR UFO VISITORS" has been produced to an encouragingly high standard. The text itself deals not only with the numerous incidents just alluded to, but also considers such allegedly associated topics as Canadian Indian legends about sky-gods and early space visitations, and the more recent (and still baffling) cattle mutilations that, although perhaps better known from various USA localities, have occurred on an alarming scale in several Canadian regions. Particularly intriguing is the section devoted to mobile land-wheels producing regular ground marks strongly similar to those left in the 1850's by the notorious "Devil" at Topsham, Devonshire, as incidents featuring such devices have been observed in Canada, too.

Mr. Magor is not afraid to discuss ufo occupants openly, and even suggests that there may be several different groups visiting earth, not all, perhaps, having the same motives. He also finds time to discuss observations of inexplicable lunar lights and movements, and discusses them in relation to the Hoerbiger theory, to Lunan's hypothesis of an orbiting alien body, and other pertinent items. All in all a thoroughly wide-ranging but sober presentation of a multifaceted subject, made all the more acceptable by an interesting though selective bibliography, and a more than adequate index. "OUR UFO VISITORS" will provide many hours of fascinating reading and should be found a place on every ufologist's bookshelf.

If "OUR UFO VISITORS" has any defects, other than a solitary typographical error, they will no doubt prove to be the lack of precise dates for some of the ufo incidents described, and the comparatively high price of the volume (although this reviewer regards it as excellent value) for some pockets. If you can afford it, then write to the publishers at 3215 Island View Road, Saanichton, B.C. V0S 1M0, Canada, for a copy of what is likely to become a classic in ufo literature.

WILHELM REICH - The Sequestered Scientist

by

Jerome Eden, M.A.

(About the Author: Jerone Eden is a former newsman and the leading exponent of the UFO Research of Dr. Wilhelm Reich. Eden publishes a quarterly UFO publication based on Reich's UFO research and theories. He is also author of two books based on Reich's work: ORGONE ENERGY and PLANET IN TROUBLE - THE UFO ASSAULT ON EARTH (both available from Miss Susan Stebbing, address on p.22) Readers may contact the Author at P.O. Box 34, Careywood, Idaho 83809, USA)

The most important scientific research ever conducted on the UFO enigma was performed by an internationally known scientist whose books were officially banned and burned by government order, and who died in a U.S. federal penitentiary in 1957. That man was Wilhelm Reich, M.D., a man of enormous perception, whose brilliant discoveries in psychology, biopsychiatry, physics, medicine and cosmology are absolutely mind-boggling. To say the least, Reich was 100 years ahead of his time.

As with so many of our greatest geniuses, Wilhelm Reich's scientific findings threatened the established orthodoxy of his time. It would be impossible, in this article, to discuss in depth the entire range of Reich's work. I shall therefore confine this discussion to some of the highlights of Reich's UFO research, which must start with his discovery (around 1936-40) of a mass-free, primordial, pre-atomic energy existing in our Universe. He named this energy (hitherto postulated by scientists as the "ether") "orgone energy". Reich's work demonstrated that space itself is not "empty", that it is in fact filled with an enormously powerful, sensitive, and moving energy sub-stratum from which all other energy and matter are derived. The basic, experimental data and scientific evidence may be found in his book, THE CANCER BIOPATHY.

Reich was able actually to hook-up this freely available cosmic orgone energy to run electric motors. Reich further demonstrated that nuclear energy and orgone energy are antithetical; that, furthermore, nuclear energy explosions and uses set up a reaction with the cosmic orgone energy which produces a highly irritating and deadly new form of energy he termed "oranur". (See my book ORGONE ENERGY for details of Reich's experimental verification.)

Today's physicists are in a terrible dilemma. They are coming to understand that their theoretical assumptions regarding nuclear energy are entirely inadequate. Men like Prof. H.C. Dudley, radiation physicist of the Illinois Medical Center in Chicago, Ill., realise with increasing alarm that the results of nuclear-energy bombs and "tests" cannot be predicted according to current atomic energy theories. In an interview given to the National Exchange (March 1977) Dr. Dudley stated "there are entirely new concepts and new data about nuclear physics" that scientists refuse to take into consideration. "The most important concept is the ancient notion of the ether, which was thought to be a gas-like medium filling space throughout the Universe". Albert Einstein did away with this concept. But Wilhelm Reich proved scientifically that Einstein was wrong.

The basic problem, then, is this: Is space "empty", or is it filled with a hitherto unknown form of energy responsible for the movement and rotation of the planets? Do atomic-bomb tests occur in a "near-Empty" Universe, or do such tests interact with a highly powerful energy continuum?

Reich's Oranur Experiment (see his Selected Writings) proved that space is indeed filled with energy. It is this highly sensitive, extremely powerful, and constantly moving energy sub-stratum which is used by UFOs in their propulsive system! Now I realise that this is an amazing, if not incredible assertion to those unfamiliar with Reich's vast and important research. All I can add, at this juncture, is to say that proof of this assertion - and more - is available to those who are open-minded enough to look at the facts without flinching, running away, or claiming (as some do) that "Reich was simply mad".

In the early part of the 1950s, Reich and his co-workers spotted a number of UFOs around his research estate near Rangeley, Maine. The high GM counts, physical distress of everyone, plus the darkening of atmosphere, were unmistakably connected with the appearance of these alien craft. To alleviate the physical distress, Reich invented a scientific apparatus which he called a "Cloudbuster". The Cloudbuster (described in my book PLANET IN TROUBLE) employing the principles of orgone energy, was able to break up the deadly radioactive clouds in the atmosphere, and ground them harmlessly into flowing water. Reich came to understand that UFOs actually use the cosmic orgone energy as their propulsive power, and produce a type of radioactive exhaust which he called "DOR" or Deadly Orgone energy. DOR lacks oxygen and water, and will attack rocks, soil, atmosphere, and the living organism in order to acquire needed moisture.

As described in my book PLANET IN TROUBLE, Wilhelm Reich mounted a research expedition into the desert of Arizona in order to test his theory that DOR was the principal agent behind our increasing world-wide drought and global desert development. For this expedition, Reich built two powerful Cloudbusters which he took with him into the desert. The Cloudbuster has the ability to draw large amounts of cosmic orgone from the atmosphere. On several occasions, Reich actually pointed his Cloudbusters at silent, hovering star-like objects in the night sky which he suspected were not stars at all, but were rather UFOs. The results were shocking. These objects moved, wavering, as if attempting to flee the influence of the draining Cloudbusters; they dimmed, wobbled, and even faded out! (These extraordinary events were published by Reich in his last book, CONTACT WITH SPACE, and are corroborated by his son, Peter Reich, in the latter's book, A BOOK OF DREAMS, Harper & Row, N.Y., 1973).

Reich's conclusions are grim and fascinating. He believed that UFOs are responsible for the terrible DOR-infestations currently causing world-wide weather chaos and global desert development. My own personal research in the North-western United States, using Reich's inventions, tends fully to corroborate Reich's findings. Ufologists everywhere are coming to the realisation that "Perhaps Reich wasn't so crazy after all!" More and more researchers are beginning to see the truth regarding Reich's connections between UFO activity and planetary desert development. Any region that has a high incidence of UFO activity, sooner or later succumbs to desert development, with grave water shortages, water-tables dropping, rivers and streams drying up, along with chaotic weather patterns, etc.

Now these are extremely frightening, shocking events. For the past twenty years I have been writing and publishing these facts which Wilhelm Reich first made available, and for which he gave his life. My book, ORGONE ENERGY, lists the names and affiliations of a score of highly qualified physicians and scientists who wrote scientific papers attesting to the validity of Reich's findings. My book, PLANET IN TROUBLE, includes a 'Foreword' by Dr. Elsworth F. Baker, an outstanding psychiatrist and medical orgone therapist, who was one of several scientists who actually witnessed the disabling of a UFO by Wilhelm Reich. Today, Dr. Baker edits The Journal of Orgonomy (Box 565, Ansonia Station, New York, N.Y., 10023, USA.) which continues to publish scientific verification of Reich's work by outstanding contemporary scientists.

Nevertheless, for the most part, so-called scientific ufologists refuse to take Reich's vital discoveries seriously. They will not study the scientific evidence, much less duplicate Reich's procedures; and they refuse to touch the contemporary evidence currently being published by those few, courageous scientists who are carrying out Reich's work in the United States. Instead, they prefer to denigrate Reich, call him "psychotic", and refuse to accept the responsibilities attendant upon his discoveries. (In fact, many of these same "UFO researchers" are still arguing among themselves whether UFOs "really exist"!)

To anyone who is brave enough to face the documented facts, however, Reich's research holds the key to a scientific approach to our planetary UFO problem. The crucial question is this: Will our planet Earth slowly dry up and die because of an interplanetary assault, simply because mankind is too frightened to face up to facts? Will our "scientific UFOlogists" continue to evade and avoid Wilhelm Reich's verified facts because they are simply too frightened of their significance? Shall we continue to evade the essentials of Reich's work by talking about mystical, factless theories, or Carl Jung's unproven nebulosities? Now I realise that these are strong words; but these are critical times.

After nearly 25 years of attempting to bring Reich's decisive and factual research to my American ufological colleagues, without success, perhaps I may be pardoned some strong language here. But we are running out of precious time. The world, as Reich predicted, is indeed undergoing the worst drought in recent history. If UFOs are a major causal factor, then it is imperative that world governments take immediate concerted action to use Reich's discoveries in reversing a trend which will cause Earth to become another desert wasteland, like the Moon and Mars.

HAVE YOU MET THIS SPACEMAN?

Graffito seen on the wall of an Oxford College:

Is there intelligent life on Earth?

Underneath, someone had added:

Yes, but I'm only visiting.

IS THE U.S. GOVERNMENT KEEPING UFO FACTS FROM THE PUBLIC?

Much controversy exists as to whether or not the U.S. government knows more about UFOs than it is prepared to admit. Indefatigable worker in this field is Major Donald Keyhoe. There are others. In this article by TIMOTHY GREEN BECKLEY, published in "IN THE KNOW" magazine (Cal. U.S.A., January 1976), space scientist STANTON FRIEDMAN claims that the U.S. has hushed up UFO investigations.

According to a top space scientist, who is convinced Earth is being visited daily by intelligently controlled UFOs, the U.S. Government knows more about the visitations that it is willing to admit.

Nuclear physicist Stanton T. Friedman of Redondo Beach, California, says he has proof that Washington has never ceased in its probe of UFOs, although it has tried to make the public think it has.

Mr. Friedman has made a study of the subject for the past twelve years. He is currently engaging in a Public Relations campaign designed to convince as many people as possible that UFOs are real, and coming here from some distant solar system. As part of his work, he has, in the past two years, visited nearly 100 colleges and universities to speak on the subject.

Mr. Friedman has revealed that as early as the late 1940's, the Department of Defence expressed concern that their then top-secret rocket testing grounds at Alamogordo, New Mexico, were being visited almost nightly by strange, glowing spheres. In fact, says Mr. Friedman, several military films taken of the actual missile test showed illuminated lights buzzing around the just-launched flying weapons. "Early secrecy was maintained" according to the prominent member of the American Institute of Aeronautics and Astronautics, "because it was feared that the public would panic at the knowledge that extra-terrestrial visitors were in our atmosphere."

Mr. Friedman maintains that the U S government is still concerned with investigating the subject, in private, behind tightly-barred doors. "I have been informed - off the record - by reliable sources, that the government has currently under way two projects to investigate UFOs that are not known to the Press or the general public. Project Bluebook, the official name given to the Air Force probe of UFOs until it was closed in 1969, was no more than a Public Relations cover-up. Since the early 1950's, the Air Force policy has been one of ridiculing them away. But if there are interplanetary travellers coming here, we should be informed. Already we see a new attitude on the part of several foreign nations. Recently, the French Minister of Defence went on nationwide television in his country and announced that UFOs did indeed exist, and were more than likely interplanetary voyagers. Also, several South American nations have softened their policy and news reports appear in both large and small papers on a day to day basis telling about startling and incredible encounters with these craft"

The academic space prober made it clear that the lunar landings of the past several years have influenced very many people to accept the possibility that we are not the only inhabitants of the vast Universe. "It seems time finally to recognise that not only is our solar system not anything really special, except to us, but that the totality of Man's history on this planet is, in the larger scheme of things, no more impressive or significant than the total history of a beehive."

SELECTED UFO REPORTS

by

D.N.Mansell.

The following series of British ufo reports have been taken from Data Research's archives for the present year (1977) and are, in fact, a selection of those amassed during the first quarter. It should be stressed, however, that although certain correlations can already be detected between some of these cases and others from overseas localities for the same period, several of the sightings are still under investigation thereby precluding final assessments to be made for some events. The present reports are presented chronologically.

Jan.1st., 1977: 01.30 hours.

(investigated by Roy Fisher).

Two eyewitnesses in a car at Chipperfield, Herts., watched a silent round white object -- the size of a football at arm's length -- hover for almost an hour before it moved off with a bobbing motion towards Berkhamstead, over which place it suddenly vanished.

Jan.9th., 1977: evening (exact hour uncertain).

Several persons saw an oval shaped object, having a large white light and a large flashing red light, in the sky over Kidderminster, Worcestershire. It should be noted that at 6.55 p.m. on this date a deep red oval object was also seen at Huntington near Cannock, Staffordshire, where it was seen to come out of and then return to an isolated cloud (see Northern UFO News, 34, 1977, p.5). Temporally and geographically these sightings are sufficiently close for the two objects to have perhaps been in reality one and the same object.

Jan.26th., 1977: time uncertain.

Three witnesses, including two airmen, at RAF Credenhill, near Hereford, watched an oblong object having eight red lights pass at no great height across the sky while making a noise like that of a jet engine moving slowly and at low altitude. All the observers were adamant that no type of conventional aircraft was involved.

Jan.26th., 1977: time uncertain.

Ruby Williams and a flat-mate saw a ball of light, coloured white and orange, pass over Deganwy, Gwynedd, Wales.

Jan.26th., 1977; 08.45 hours.

A lone witness saw a fast moving silver coloured bullet-shaped object race across the sky between clouds over Belper, Derbyshire. Compare this sighting -- recorded in Northern UFO News, 34, 1977, p.5 --- with the two immediately above.

Jan.27th., 1977: 16.45 hours.

Three observers saw a very low altitude object like a flattened grapefruit, having encircling windows and a strange down-turned pipelike apparatus at the rear(?), hover over a woodyard at Bridlington, Humberside. While it was in the area, machinery in a nearby factory failed to function and several wrist-watches unaccountably stopped. The witnesses also suffered mild physical affects (see Northern UFO News, 35-36, 1977, pp.8-9).

Feb.4th., 1977: 02.25 hours.

An AA patrolman driving along the A500 at Basford, Staffordshire, saw a fairly low flying luminous orange object that apparently caused chronic static on his radio as long as it remained in his vicinity. The object was sighted by a second percipient independently, and radio interference was simultaneously experienced at Stafford Police headquarters.

Feb.7th., 1977: about 12.30 hours.

Pupils at Edenhurst preparatory school, Newcastle-under-Lyme, Staffordshire, saw a grey-hued flattened cigar-like object moving slowly in a kind of vapour or mist. The object then become thinner, changed colour to orange, and then to green, as it proceeded ESE over the rooftops. It was visible for approximately 15 minutes.

Feb.13th., 1977: 21.00 hours.

Two witnesses, fleetingly joined by a third, watched an unusually bright "star", flanked by two small red lights, moving slowly from N.to S., and then stop and re-trace its course, after a while turning suddenly due W. It was visible for about 10 minutes, during which period it fluctuated continuously between a mere pinpoint of light to the size of a small pea at arm's length. The locality was Noak Hill village, Brentwood, Essex.

Feb.15th., 1977: 17.45 hours.

(investigated by Brian Panter)

Two young ladies observed for a period of 5 minutes at sunset, a saucer shaped object having 2 red lights and a blue-green centre descend vertically over Corby, Northamptonshire. The object, which then hovered, displayed red, blue, and green lights rotating round an encircling band. It disappeared just as the Sun set.

Mar.4th., 1977: 20.00 hours.

(investigated by Brian Panter)

A lone witness at Oxenden, Northamptonshire, saw an elliptical object in the sky near her home. It changed colour from white, to red, to green, and back to white. Visible about  $1\frac{1}{2}$  minutes, the object was silent, slow moving, and an estimated altitude of about 500 feet.

Mar.4th., 1977: between 20.40 and 22.00 hours.

(investigated by Paul Waine)

9-year old Tina Kelly watched a large three-pointed object in the sky near or over Lytham St.Anne's, Lancashire. It had a yellow light at the end of each point, and 3 red lights clustered underneath. The object alternately hovered, spun, changed direction sharply, and pulsated. Tina, who was not unnaturally fearful, estimated the speed as about 20 mph., the height above ground level as some 60 feet, and that it approached to within 40 yards of her.

It is noteworthy that at on the same date, a cigar-shaped object with triangular fins on the upper and lower margins was seen at 20.50 hours over Blackpool; that at 20.00 hours a silvery sphere was observed at a point between Whaley Bridge and Chapel-en-le-Frith, Derbyshire; that at 20.45 hours multi-coloured lights were seen from Rossendale, Lancashire; and that at 16.35 hours a cigar-shaped object was seen over Halifax, West Yorkshire, where three photographs were taken of it. All these events appear to have been a part of concentrated ufo activity on this date.

Mar.24th., 1977: 21.32 hours.

(investigated by Paul Waine)

A professional geologist (anonymity requested) saw a fast moving yellow-white light near Preston, Lancashire. Initially moving WSW to ENE it suddenly altered direction to NNE. It was surrounded by an aura of steady light. It was not a satellite.
